TONIGHT'S REPERTOIRE

PART ONE

獨上C樓 Du Shang C Lou (Once In A Blue Moon) - 黃宣YELLOW x Mavis Fan

Soloist: Dante Lokitiyakul
Arranged by: Suzanna Wang

hi guys my name is dante and i found this song in my spotify recs one day and it just kinda reached out to me yknow i didnt really understand anything but it kinda slapt so i just put in on replay and before i knew it i was dancing in the streets and singing like a disney princess and everyone around me was also singing and now we're all spontaneously breaking out into synchronized dance and then it was raining and it felt like i was in a movie and i felt really cool and handsome and awesome and jazzy and

青春頌 Qing Chun Song (Youth Anthem) - 小肥 Terence Siufay

Soloist: Justin Ng
Arranged by: Michael Tu & Christopher Chien

Originally by 許廷鏗(Alfred Hui), 青春頌, released in 2013, is considered one of the staple Cantonese karaoke songs in Hong Kong. The song was considered to be somewhat cliched with its simplistic "YOLO" / "seize-the-day" message and was initially released mainly targeting teenagers. However, it surprisingly rose to the top of billboards in Hong Kong, perhaps due to a wider audience who are reminiscing their youth through the song (our soloist Justin who is the youngest in the group probably falls into this category as well). The original version by Alfred Hui is wayyy too sadboi as if every Yo's young soul has been crushed by Penn, so we picked this cover version by Siufay and Serrini that is much more cheerful and buoyant, hopefully to serve as a reminder that there is more in life than the job hunts, exams, and whatever challenges that lie immediately in front of us.

能火 Neng Huo (Zenfire) x Industry Baby - 熊仔 Kumachan x Lil Nas X

Soloist: Michael Tu
Arranged by: Michael Tu & Christopher Chien

If I'm being honest - the context for this mashup can be attributed to two things: my love of memes and alumnus-MD-yo Christopher Chien's love of rap music (and Taiwan). I said something along the lines of "hey Chris, what would fit with this Lil Nas X song", to which he immediately face palmed, said 幹, and proceeded to send me this Taiwanese rap song inspired by J-Cole.

But honestly, the two songs we ended up with - 能火/Zenfire by Kumachan, and Industry Baby by Lil Nas X kindaaaaa fit, and more importantly, they both kindaaaaaaaaa lit. People loved the snippet of my rap for Jay Chou's Mojito last year and I am a man of the people,,, so I hope you're ready for like three minutes of that LOL

不如不見 Bu Ru Bu Jian (Better Not To Meet) x All Too Well
- 陳奕迅 Eason Chan x Taylor Swift

Soloists: Jacqueline Wu
Arranged by Jacqueline Wu & Christopher Chien

Eason Chan's 不如不見 is a song about that regret and sadness that you feel when you decide to find your ex-lover from 10 years ago to catch up. A bad decision, in my opinion, but the song is so pretty I couldn't resist combining it with Taylor Swift's "All Too Well". "All Too Well" is probably my favourite song from her, and it's also about the regret and pain that comes from reminiscing about an old relationship. I didn't expect the lyrics to mashup together this well, and I also didn't know that Midnights was going to be dropped when I started arranging, but I guess these are the hands of fate.

情非得已 Qing Fei De Yi (Can't Help Falling In Love With You) x Your Man
- 庾澄慶 Harlem Yu x Josh Turner

Soloist: August Fu
Arranged by: Suzanna Wang

PennYo goes country!!!! Put on your cowboy hat and hear a story of someone who can't help falling in love with their loved one in 情非得已, and the story of Your Man who has little patience to do what he's been thinking all day long.

Hello x Hello - Fei ft. Jackson Wang x Adele

Soloist: Suzanna Wang
Arranged by: Suzanna Wang

Hello. I don't actually know why I picked either of these songs I just liked how they sound. I don't even know what the Chinese song means. Real

Newbie Medley

Soloists: Christopher Wun, Connie Pan, Cuong Nguyen, Melody Luo, Xiaoshen Ma
Arranged by: Suzanna Wang

This is Suzzy speaking here. I have a strange affinity for really really bad music, and I wanted to get a little chuckle out of this year's newbie medley. I wish I had known how good at ballads the incoming class would be when I wrote this over the summer because now I feel like my arrangement has actively screwed them all over, but that's ok. I present to you: the prepubescent boy medley.

INTERMISSION

PART TWO

完美主義 Wan Mei Zhu Yi (Perfectionism) x Come Down - 周杰倫 Jay Chou x Anderson .Paak

Soloist: Chardonnay Needler
Arranged by Christopher Chien

I love rap. This partnered with a The one 4 only me near annual request I hear that "Penny should do more rap," led & to only choose from a pool of rap / hip hop. Anderson.Paak's "Come Down" was a fairly melodically forward, so it would mesh well with an acappella sound. "完美主義 / Perfectionism by the one and only Jay Chou not only goes well, but I also thought the lyrics were fitting. "Come Down" is, among other things, celebratory - "it took too long to get this high off the ground" - whereas Jay Chou's song describes the pain from a break up that puts on a show. "Perfectionism" ends in heartbreak, but "coming down" offers an an antidote.

Fun fact: the opening of Paak's song is "The "Hatikuah" ("Hope"), a poem originally penned by a Ukrainian poet that became Israel's national anthem.

泡沫 Pao Mo (Bubble) x All I Ask - 鄧紫棋 G.E.M. x Adele

Soloist: Natalie Kung
Arranged by Natalie Kung & Christopher Chien

泡沫 and All I Ask are two of my favourite songs. They are both powerful ballads by two incredibly talented singers, G.E.M. and Adele. 泡沫 describes that just like bubbles drifting in air, beautiful things like love are fragile and their destruction lead to heartbreak and pain. All I Ask similarly expresses a bittersweet desire to hold on to the good memories of a loving relationship. Besides the haunting lyrics and soulful melodies, I hope that the song reminds us to take time to express gratitude for our loved ones and to appreciate the fleeting but impactful moments we have in our days.

玫瑰少年 Mei Gui Shao Nian (Womxnly) - 蔡依林 Jolin Tsai

Soloist: Sylvia Chen
Arranged by Sylvia Chen

玫瑰少年 is a song by Taiwanese singer Jolin Tsai. The Chinese title directly translates into "Rose Boy," a term of endearment for Yeh Yung-Chih, whose death at the age of 15 received national attention. Before his death, Yeh was bullied at school for his perceived effeminate behavior. His mother was critical of the outcome of the investigation of his death and became an LGBTQ advocate. The song's lyrics convey that there is no established framework for gender identity, and the song is written over a danceable electronic beat. For my arrangement, I have the first part arranged based on the original version by Jolin, and the second part transitioned into a rock beat. I hope to empower people through this performance and encourage people to be their true selves.

死了都要愛 Si Le Dou Yao Ai (Death Love) x Bohemian Rhapsody

- 信樂團 Shin x Queen
Soloist: Tommy Hu
Arranged by Suzanna Wang

死了都要愛 (Death Love) is the single most classic Chinese belty love song by the Taiwanese rock band Shin. Released as a mandarin cover of the Korean original song, Love Over A Thousand Years, 死了都要愛 is a powerful narrative of commitment and devotion to love. With consecutive high Cs and high Ds, it is a challenging and very fun piece to take on. The other part of the medley, Bohemian Rhapsody, needs no further introduction. This masterpiece by the legendary Queen complements the arrangement with classic verses and interesting variations from Western rock.

夜機 Ye Ji (Night Flight) x City of Stars - 張敬軒 Hins Cheung x Ryan Gosling (La La Land)

Soloist: Geshi Yeung
Arranged by Suzanna Wang & Christopher Chien

夜機 (Night Flight) is a song by the Hong Kong-based singer Priscilla Chan released in 1989. In it she sings about boarding a night flight alone, leaving behind her lover and their bygone relationship — with her voice infusing the song with faint but pervading sorrow and regret. In contrast, our arrangement is based on Hins Cheung's cover of the song, which is a lot more upbeat and arranged in a bossa nova style. I resonated with this cover because it captures my ambivalent feelings of missing home while looking forward to college as I boarded my flight from Hong Kong to Philly. I decided to make it a mashup with city of stars as I think the two songs together evoke a beautiful image: as you sit alone on a flight and look out into the city of stars, even if past memories are fading into the darkness of the night, hope and excitement await.

我要我們在一起 Wo Yao Wo Men Zai Yi Qi (I Want Us To Be Together)

x Golden Hour - 鄧紫棋 G.E.M. x JVKE

Soloist: Anna Zhang
Arranged by Anna Zhang

When sunlight turns magical, I wish we could be together in the fleeting golden hour. 我要我們在一起 (I Want Us to be Together) is a jazz pop by Mavis Fan and is included in her album of the same name released in 1999. Between the three-beat rhythm and the descending and repetitive melodic pattern, the song narrates the reminiscence of the blast of love and excitement of the past, in contrast to the current blandness and tedium with an uncertainty – should we still be together? As we contemplate on this ineffable emotion, lovely memories begin to swell. I bring in JVKE's "golden hour," a combination of pop rap and Indie that articulates the magical shiny moments of romance. Suddenly, you "slow down time" and I travel back to "our golden hour." We transcend beyond reality and achieve a surreal musical territory. At this moment, I no longer hesitate – I want us to be together. 我要我們在一起 and "golden hour" are two marvelous songs, and I wish everyone can immerse in this glimmering musical world.

MEET THE YO'S

Connie Pan Gru

Our star of the show, Felonious Gru aka Connie Pan, are the true multifaceted queen. Despite being sophomore newbs, Connie take on so many responsibilities. Whether that is handling the sexy doors as Bloomers tech or finding the perfect mustache for Henchman 2 from a pile of mustaches at PAC shop, Connie put in the hard work to make shows come together. They would also switch seamlessly between alto and tenor, depending on where the group needs them the most. However, Connie have this soft side, with a very squish-able face and the cutest east European accent as Gru. They like to take the broke oldies to dinner, swiping them into the quaker kitchen on a regular basis, probably more often than the oldies have done for their newbie meals :( Please look forward to witnessing Connie's transition into a successful villain at the end of this journey.

Xiaoshen Ma Kevin

Born and raised in NYC, Xiaoshen 'Kevin' Ma faced a daunting challenge when her boss Gru was captured to the West Coast. Along with her best Miniyos, she set off for a long roadtrip to San Panpisco to master the art of Kung Fu and rescue their boss. Having been through such an adventure, it doesn't come as a surprise that she has no issue adjusting to her freshman life at Penn, where she got bribed into PennYo with a microwave (yes, a microwave) by our music director and fed newbie meals by her fellow Miniyos once (or twice? or thrice? or four times? Idek) every week after joining the group. A true master of Kung Fu, she embodies all the superpowers that you would find in a Miniyo. Rumor has it that not only does she has an amazing voice, but she also radiates positivity so whoever is friends with her would find themselves having a much better quality of life.

Christopher Wun Stuart

There are a few constants in life - death, taxes, and PennYo having a token frat boy in its ranks. With the departure of our dear alumnusyo Harrison Chen and no clear heir to the "throne", hope seemed to be lost...

This was until, FROM LEFT FIELD, emerged Christopher "Stuart" Wun. Although he looks more like the second coming of alumnusyo Dan Lee - with his generic haircut, classic glasses, and bike that he rides around campus - we recommend you don't judge a Yo by its cover. On any given night at 1AM there's an equal chance our man is raging at the Sig Ep house as he is grinding an orgo lab. the duality of man.

A lover of Mario Kart, and of singing alone in Harnwell (to the great delight of the people he lives with), Chris is a real charmer and a bona-fide Loyal Chinese Man™.

Side Note: Man's looks cute as hell in his costume as a minion, please hype him up - yellow really is this man's color.

Cuong Nguyen Bob

After being banned from drinking any caffeinated drinks by the Student Health Services, Cuong knew the grind had to stop. Instead, he embarked on an amazing journey with his fellow MiniYons to retrieve the misplaced Zodiac stone (who happens to be our music director). To unlock the potential in his voice and defeat the Vicious 5, he was put through the trial of having to sing and choreograph Baby by Justin Bieber. Mayhaps not the biggest fan of Justin Bieber last time I checked, but Cuong continues to be the Yo who finds love in anything and everything. Get ready as he serenades you with a voice as sweet as his personality.

August Fu Otto

August Fu is only a sophomore, and yet his voice is nectar:

rich, velvety, deep -
not too sweet, not too crisp, yet the perfect blend of both.

You can tell that August is a man by the way he holds himself, by the way he confidently sits in the back of rehearsal,
by the way he volunteers to play Otto (the chatterbox of the show), despite having no desire to be the center of attention.

And yet it is exactly this that makes him the loudest in the room -

his dominating silence,
his mysterious aura.

Every Wednesday at 1:40PM you find yourself at Fagin Hall,

six feet away from him,
butterflies in your stomach,
your attention on him,
his on a NETS212 problem set.

But deep inside, you want him to return the favor.
Deep inside, you want his stare, through the curls of his chocolate hair.

Deep inside, you want him to catch a glimpse of you looking

Deep inside, you want him to walk up to you,
pin you to the wall,
and whisper in your ear
about locking the door
and turning the lights down low.

In truth, this August exists only in the depths of my imagination -

but if you,
and I,
and everyone else in this room believes,
then the August who presents himself here tonight
might just be the one I've described for you.

Melody Luo Belle Bottom

A refugee native of Long Island, NY, the aptly-named Melody "Belle Bottom" Luo is always an absolute stunner on stage with her killer winged eyeliner, perfect breath control, and — true to her role — flared pants. (Yes, we typecast.) This villainous head honcho's distinctive alto voice is easy to pick out of a crowd, but she's not always out causing mayhem. She can often be found with friends, exploring museums and other new and exciting places, all the while making her signature peace-sign-and-kissy-face combo and sporting the hand-embroidered tote bag that showcases just how multi-talented our newbie is. Whether in a fight scene or on the Iron Gate stage, we can't wait to see Melody shine!

Michael Tu Wild Knuckles

Once our youngest and now our tallest, Michael "Wild Knuckles" Tu is truly one of a kind. When he's not figuring out marketing schedules or practicing his beatbox (oh yes, he beatboxes now). Michael can be found cooking, playing the cello at his own funeral and in orchestra, watching anime or saying hi to people he knows on Locust every 3 steps he takes. He does also partake in some partying activities, and when he does, you'll know because his face turns about as red as the PennYo colors (FuneralYo, take notes). Anyway, look out tonight for his beatboxing, as well as his Kumachan and Lil Nas X mashup that is even more fire than his spice tolerance can handle.

Justin Ng Jean Clawed

This (not so old) ol' chap is a man of culture and care. When not singing crisp tenor melodies that will tear at your heartstrings (or coding and consulting), you can find Justin biking around the city (cares about climate change), spending quality time with unofficial PennYo member Carmen (cares about being a loyal Chinese man), and claiming his title as a K歌之王 when Canto hits go on screen (cares about having a good time).

While the British twang, spiffy dress, and Cambridge stories make him a connoisseur of high society, you'll find that this CS Master's student is laid back, easy-going, and open-minded. Not only does he spend his youth seeking the best, but he also always supports other Yos along the way.

Geshi Yeung Nun-Chuck

Geshi (Geshdawg) Yeung is our beloved production chair and Tenor 2 veteran. Featured in MiniYons as a major supervillain, Nun-chuck, Geshi still comes off as the most adorable, despite attempts to channel his inner evilness, if he has any. When he's not busy skipping rehearsals for dinner plans, you may find him giving opponents no mercy on the badminton court or getting buried deep with CogSci + CompSci schoolwork. Semester after semester, Geshi keeps on amazing us with the funniest concert videos as production chair. But beyond working miracles with cameras and Final Cut Pro, his reliability, leadership, and attention to detail spill into the Tenor 2 section as well. Word has it that Geshi frequents the local masseuse weekly to relieve back pain from carrying T2. Hence, every night before going to bed, members of the PennYo family pray that Geshi submatriculates so we may milk one more year of his production prowess, sectional leadership, and mesmerizing voice.

Anna Zhang Svengance

As one of the members of the Vicious 6, Anna "Svengance" Zhang has skated her way into our hearts with her beautiful voice. While her on-screen personality may seem intimidating (look out for her evil laugh: mwAhAhahHhahaha), her real-life personality could not possibly be any sweeter. Either way, you'll be blown away by her stunning arrangements (yasssss music major), sliced by her sharp eyeliner and perfect bangs (how does she manage to make a Minions villain look so Instagramable??), and shocked by the extent of her breath control. (Seriously! I urge you to count how many seconds she holds the note at the end of her solo). Outside of PennYo, you can find her singing opera (in Chinese, Italian, French — you name it, she'll do it!), sporting her teddy bear jacket, and simply slaying 24/7.

Dante Lokitayakul Stronghold

Dante "Stronghold" Lokitayakul may genuinely be THE most antisocial social chair that PennYo has ever seen - never before have we seen a semester so packed with weekly study parties, and the one time that we did have a mixer with PADT Dante left early from the social that was being hosted in his own home to go study somewhere else. However, believe it or not, Dante continues to be the closest tie PennYo has to Tri Delt... so perhaps in many ways Dante continues to be the diversity anchor of this organization. Around campus, look out for Dante sitting in PennYo board meeting regretting joining board as each second passes, trying his best to sing without boxing the shit out of the air in front of him, discovering the most niche Chinese music on the Internet (you'll hear it when his solo comes) even as one of PennYo's only non-Chinese speakers, or struggling to find an AirBnB that won't cause PennYo bankruptcy. Everybody sit and pray with us that Dante continues to submat at Penn literally forever and never graduates, because PennYo would simply not be PennYo without him.

Natalie Kung Master Chow

Natalie “Master Chow” Kung may not be the biggest Yo but her voice is larger than life (and so are her kung fu skills)! One of the few Yo’s with a 4-year tenure, Natalie’s experience gives her a maturity unmatched by the rest of us fools, a true shifu both on-screen and in person. But it comes as no surprise that this former President lays the structural foundation of our PennYo family, given that she studies art and architecture outside of PennYo too! Stay tuned for her beautiful singing and her arguably more beautiful HIIYAAAHs!!

Jacqueline Wu Birthday Kid

Just like the birthday kid in Minions, Jackie “Birthday Kid” Wu is a wholesome, energetic, and adorable child (especially when she’s high on caffeine). With her smaller-than-average stride length, her tendency to waddle, and beanie attire, Jackie is a cute and loveable member of PennYo. But that’s not all; Jackie is also PennYo’s pillar, always on top of her presidency game, like when she chases after other PennYo members to meet her deadlines, or when she takes care of all of us with her strong motherly energy. I mean, truly, this girl crochets, is a homebody, is really good at giving stern lectures, and takes care of others before herself. That aside, enjoy Jackie’s heartfelt rendition of two Eason Chan and Taylor Swift classics!

Sylvia Chen Dr. Nefario / Henchman

Hi! My name is Sylvia Chen, or 陈筱霓. It is not xiaonic, or the M&T girl!! I’m here to introduce five must-knows about myself, four of which are true. First, everything cracks me up (haha point is extremely low) and I am good at passing on the joy. If you just look at me during rehearsal run-throughs, I will haha and you will hahaha and the entire group will render a hahahaha performance instead, so do not look at me. Second, I have a Persian cat and I post a lot on Instagram and “I want my cat to be here rn.” Wow, did I just quote myself? Third, UGG’s slippers + stockings are the best. Everyone should try it. Fourth, I am so so talented: I can arrange, I can sing beautifully, I can direct our music video, I can film, and I can manage $$$ for py. Last but not least, it is really myself writing my own bio.

Tommy Hu Motorcycle Uncle / Henchman

Through his awesome acting and swaggy sweatpants, Tommy is able to seamlessly transition between being “Motorcycle Uncle” and “Henchman.” Ask him to show you his evil laugh! Like a princess, he’ll disappear at the stroke of midnight with a puff of smoke. Like a prince, he’ll buy you flowers and chicken McNuggets while singing power ballads. Chivalry will never die with Tommy around. While his inflated vocal range already seems illegal, he has also been perfecting his beatboxing. Don’t get too lost in his energetic beats though, he’ll kill you with the tender notes when you least expect it. Get ready to hear him put the “mama” in amazing.

SHOUTOUTS

Suzanna Wang Rocks

Strong. Powerful. Talented. These are some of the words that describe Miss Suzanna Wang. After being in PennYo for just ONE year, she became everyone's beloved music director. According to one fan, Miss Wang is very much a #girlboss who can not only create and perform, but has a beautiful voice, one that can make you drop to your knees. Have you heard her sing Jian Dan Ai yet? Her vocal skills not only reign supreme on tone and power, but also pitch. She demonstrates her abilities through the excellency of composing almost all the harmonious pieces you hear from Penn Yo, and she portrays her leadership capabilities by leading members through performance after performance. All her talents are signs that illustrate how godly she is in the realm of musical perfection!

Chardonay Needler Marlena Gru

Chardonay may not have been very present in Gru's childhood, but that's only because she is always out here living her splendid life. Inspiringly free-spirited and open to the diversity of the human experience, Chard decided to take one step further and partake in the renowned monk class this semester, going on a vow of silence for months and abiding by an ascetic lifestyle. Waking up at 4am each morning, Chard went months without using any technology or saying a single word during PennYo rehearsals — it is honestly a miracle that she is still here performing all these 14 songs with us. While we missed listening to her deep political and cultural insights, her soulful alto voice sounds as pristine as ever. She also chose to do a Chinese rap song (AGAIN) — mind you, she rapped to Hua Chenyu's song last year and the performance was so impressive that it went viral on Bilibili, gaining over 100K views in a few days. So brace yourself for another unforgettable rap from our now-enlightened Chardonay!
